

We Want to Hear From You!

CALL FOR AUTHORS

We are currently seeking articles for the Defense Acquisition Review Journal (ARJ) in the following two subject areas: Performance-Based Acquisition and Systems-of-Systems Acquisition. We need all performance-based articles by August 30, 2004 and we need all system-of-systems acquisition articles by December 30, 2004.

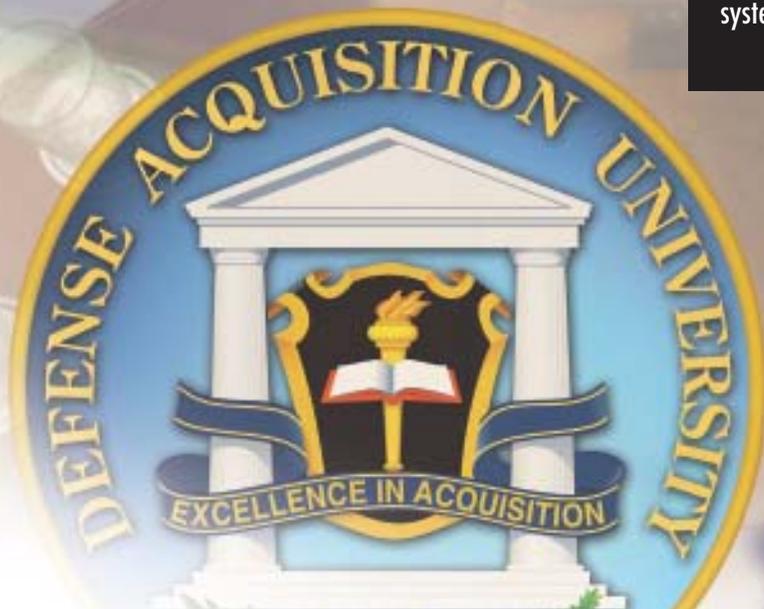

Even if your agency does not require you to publish, consider these career-enhancing possibilities:

- Share your acquisition research results with the AT&L community.
- Change the way DoD does business.
- Help others avoid pitfalls with lessons learned or best practices from your project or program.
- Teach others through a step-by-step tutorial on a process or approach.
- Share new information that your program has uncovered or discovered through the implementation of new initiatives.
- Condense your graduate project into something useful to the acquisition community.

Enjoy these potential benefits:

- Earn 25 continuous learning points for publishing in a refereed journal.
- Get a potential promotion.
- Become a nationally recognized expert in your field or specialty.
- Be asked to speak at a conference or symposium.

We invite anyone in the field of performance-based acquisition or system-of-system acquisition to submit an article based on research, lessons-learned, opinion, or a tutorial.

If you are interested, contact the Defense ARJ managing editor (norene.fagan-blanch@dau.mil) by June 25, 2004 and provide a brief description of your article and contact information. Please visit the guidelines for authors at <http://www.dau.mil/pubs/arq/arqart.asp>.
